The Process Perspective II

Synopsis

This book begins where the original book left off. Retaining its reader-friendly, question-and-answer format, John B. Cobb, Jr. tackles new questions and misunderstandings about process theology. Divided into three sections--metaphysics, science, and faith-- a variety of questions on topics of contemporary interest are addressed: What is the process view of angels and demons? How does process explain free will? How does process theology respond to stem cells and ensoulment? How does process explain God and suffering? What is the relationship between process, evangelical, and liberal theologies? In answering these and other questions, Cobb opens our minds to new understandings and gives us new ways to relate to our world and the God at work within it.
