I purchased the Notebook Reference Student Planner: Second Edition for my daughter who is entering middle school next year. Approximately 1/4" thick, it has 3-ring binder holes so it can be placed in any 3-ring notebook. Made for grades 4-8, this could also be useful for high schoolers as it's essentially a book that allows for a student to write down their schedule and homework assignments. In addition there are places for photos, contact numbers, emergency info (contacts, allergies, etc...). I like that it's setup by month (beginning in August... ending in June) with weekly assignment sheets (Monday thru Friday) that include the headings: subject, assignment and a place to check it off when complete. Study tips and quotes are found on each page too. Room for 'notes and reminders' as well as 'activities and events' are opposite each week's page, and could supplement the area allotted for homework assignments. In the back is a large 'yearbook' section. This seemed unnecessary to me as it's space to glue in photos of friends, but no autographs. This is followed by sections with reference materials on the following: U.S. Presidents, US government, Facts about our 50 states, US time zones, US Historical Facts, US and Canadian info (including the Pledge of Allegiance...), World Time zones, Timeline of inventions, All around the world... roman numerals, seven continents, seven seas... greek gods..., birth flowers, chinese zodiac, horoscope signs, birth stones, colleges (ivy league, pac-10, Big 12...), Periodic Table of the Elements, Weights and Measures, Conversions, cooking conversions, Sign language, health and safety tips. An inexpensive way to keep your young student organized with some basic reference info. Now if you can just get them to use it!

I used this planner for my daughter. This is one of the best planners we have had. Now they are getting this planner for the entire school!!! recommend this highly. It is very simple, easy to use and generic where you can start from the beginning and there is no waste. Even if you started using it in the middle of the year.

Just what my daughter needed for school. We put it in a cute folder , but you don't have to . Had little extras in it for conversion and state capitols that make it easy for refreshing my memory when I can't remember answers. Would highly recommend . I seen others in store and office supplies stores that were 3X the price , this is the exact product , plus more.

It has a younger child look to it. It says 4-8th grade so I expected it to be more geared towards that age however it seems a better fit for elementary school and I bought it for my son going into 7th grade. I couldn't find one at the time aside from the 4-8 grade planner or I would have purchased one that didn't start as low as 4th grade. It is a great planner. Has everything a planner should and needs to have. My only issue with it is that it is a little immature for my son's grade.

This is a great planner for kids in school as well as home school. Fun sayings on the pages, nice font, and easy to use. I purchased several of these for our young Entrepreneur class. As Steven Covey said, "You don't plan to fail, you fail to plan. So teach your kiddos to use a planner.

After several blunders and misinformation on the part of the USPS, hastened to get me this planner in a timely fashion. I am glad that they did. The planner is very detailed, and has so much interesting information. I bought it for my granddaughter who, sometimes, cannot always remember when assignments are due. This is just right for her. It is compiled with so much facts and in such a manner to hold her attention. I like everything about it. Whilst I have your attention, I would be remiss if I did commend Customer Care Specialists on the time and effort they put in to replace this planner - mislaid by the Post Office. Their prompt response to my complaints could not have been better if it were a high priced item that was mislaid. told me to donate the first mislaid planner when it eventually found its way to me. Thanks, for caring. By the way, the planner is designed for all age groups. Treat a child to one, it will be appreciated.

This worked out great for our homeschooling. I wasn't sure when I first looked at in online but once we received it we were very pleased.

I shouldn't have expected much for the price. The area to write assignments is very small. I did like that the dates were not in the agendas, so the extras can be used next year.
